WHAT do the people of St. Louis think of their officials who, with open friendship for law breakers, combine an entire disregard for their profitable crimes?

LEON ABBETT's plurality for Governor in New Jersey is 14,233, the largest since 1867. E. BURKE GRUENE was in even worse condition than anyone suspected before the race.

The proposition of the Nineteenth Ward Democratic Club to down bossmism in the local party will receive the hearty endorsement of all honest Democrats. More power to the club's elbow.

THE lottery agents yesterday held a special Thanksgiving drawing, sold tickets openly and published lottery advertisements in bold defiance of the laws of the State. The police ate turkey.

The merchants reached the people yesterday through the Post-Dispatch and the people will reach the merchants today. The sun has shone brightly on the bargain-makers and trade has flourished.

THE Post-Dispatch hails with joy the evidence that its opposition to party bosses is receiving the encouragement of party organizations. It has already received the substantial aid of thousands of voters.

The Thanksgiving offerings of the lottery rascals to the police authorities were formally made yesterday, but they were just as hearty as if they had been. They were garnished also with handsome holiday profits.

PRESIDENT HARRISON should have Congressman FRANK's candidates for local office, carefully investigated. FRANK might recommend lottery law breakers for an important place. That's the gang he is training with and he probably wants a congenital company in office.

In the Nineteenth Ward Democratic Club makes a success of its plan to abolish party bosses in the interest of free, fair and peaceful primaries it will deserve the everlasting gratitude of all good Democrats. Bossism has been the greatest curse of the Democratic party in this State.

The pleasure of New England's holiday was sadly blighted for the Boston people by the terrible fire which destroyed property valued at $10,000,000. It was the greatest configuration in that city since 1872. Although it was a holiday the resources of the Post-Dispatch were equal to the emergency and a full account of the disaster was laid before our readers last evening.

At what is called the Gentleman's Driving Park in Kansas City on Thanksgiving Day "a former City Attorney well known in sporting circles" was a party to a foot race at Berkley's. He lost $2,000 on one of the runs and turned away understanding that the adherents of Yale far outdid those of Princeton. At the Bazaar, Butch, the world's greatest ground in miserable condition, and in spectators wallowed about in the mud. The game was fair, shavings having been thrown over it. Many people who paid their way into the grounds were unable to get out again. In the mud, in the mud, in the mud.

times elect as city officers to enforce the laws. But St. Louis saw as shameful a sight on Thanksgiving Day and has been contemplating it for many months—the spectacle of a hundred lottery ticket vendors and a Congressman's newspaper violating the law with the consent and connivance of the whole line of officials.

REED AND MCKINLEY.

The contest between MCKINLEY and REED would, if CANNON and other compromise candidates were out of the way, divide the party into platform and anti-platform factions. MCKINLEY stands openly for the platform, the Ohio sheep and the Pennsylvania pig-iron man, while REED is understood to be the leader of a quiet movement to throw the platform, the sheep and the pig-iron man overboard in response to the demand of the Eastern manufacturers for free raw material.

If REED is Speaker MCKINLEY will be put at the head of the Ways and Means, but with a majority of the committee against him; whereas, if MCKINLEY is Speaker, that committee will be constituted to tax everything except whisky and tobacco on the idea that taxation is protection and that this protection should be withdrawn from whisky and tobacco rather than from the necessities of life.

But no matter what Republican is Speaker, there will be conflicting interests and opinions on the tax question on the Republican side as there have been on both sides in former Congresses, and again the caucus of the majority will find itself powerless to carry out the platform. The probability is that the session will be given up to subsidy schemes, contested seats, fights over the rules, and partisan controversies and schemes rather than to measures of real and lasting benefit to the general interests and industries of the country.

THE IRON TRADE BOOM.

The world-wide consumption of "Free Trade England's" exports of iron and steel manufactures has created such a demand for the raw material that pig-iron can now be produced in this country and, as his hair has turned white.

This plan will also make the formation and meeting of committees easy. Mr. Phil Chev was seen this morning by a Post-Dispatch reporter, and he expresses himself as being very enthusiastic regarding the convention.

There will be two different meetings at first, and then, when they will be undoubtedly consolidated the first day of the convention. There are a number of different organizations to be represented at the convention, and a third, the Farmers' Union of America composed of what formerly was the Farmers' Mutual Benevolent Association of Illinois, the Farmers' Alliance of Wisconsin, and the Farmers' Union of Iowa. These associations here all recently consolidated into the Farmers and Laborers' Union, which union is a secret organization. This consolidation has only been recently effected.

"Last December, 1888, a meeting was held in New York, Miss., at which the railroads that were then the founders of the State alliances and State wheels ratified the proposed consolidation, the presidents of these associations being present. The railroads and the State wheels a thing of the past and the consolidation should go into effect. It is only within a few weeks that this has been effected."

"The farmers' alliances of the Northern States have not yet joined the union, but on Tuesday the delegates from the alliances will be present and the railroads will be represented at the Marchant's Exchange, where it is expected that they will take the steps necessary to join them. There is one thing about the consolidation which is most remarkable, and that is that the members of the various alliances generally do not know of the existence of the others. A great many object to the name, Farmers and Laborers' Union. They want it called National Farmers' Union. When the State alliances came into our ranks it was with the understanding that the latter name should be chosen, and it has been chosen. The railroads and the State wheels are the ones which are impose any penalties. It simply holds that in all such cases the courts will abstain from enforcing contracts against public policy and from adjudicating rights claimed under such contracts. This doctrine, applied to all contracts of a similar nature, would resolve nearly all the pools and trust combinations into mere "understandings between gentlemen," without any of the remedies necessary to the business life of the combination or to the mutual security of the parties to it.

THE local lottery agents hate the Post-Dispatch because it is in favor of enforcing the lottery laws, but they have honeyed compliments for the police authorities. The Post-Dispatch is proud of the eminence it has gained. Can the police authorities say the same of the disgraceful friendship they have won through failure to do their duty? And what do the honest citizens of St. Louis think of it?

DELEGATES FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS.

The Farmers' Alliance Will Consolidate With the Farmers' and Laborers' Union—The Name of Farmers' Alliance to Be Retained in All Probability—No Consolidation with the Knights of Labor Proposed.

EXT Tuesday the convention of the Farmers and Laborers' Union of America will be held in this city at Central Turner Hall. The delegates have already begun to arrive, A. E. Gardner, the Secretary of Tennessee, and Mr. Macune of Mississippi reporting this morning.

MONDAY A meeting of the National Committee will be held to decide the program for the convention, and all arrangements will be completed by the meeting as called to order. The principal work of making arrangements has been done by Phil Chev, chairman of the Committee on Arrangements.

The delegates to the convention will be given a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip on all railroads, and reduced rates have been made with the hotels in this city for the accommodation of all delegates. There have been about 300 delegates appointed to attend the meeting, but all members of the Farmers and Laborers' Union who are in good standing and have the pass-word will be present.

An Account of the Great Foot-Ball Match—Yale Again Carries off the Honors—A Novel Sport Enjoyed by Swell New Yorkers—Players Singing With the Brother-hood—Sporting News.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—HE Princeton tigers, cheering, yelling their college cries, blowing their horns and singing snatches of songs descended upon Broadway last night and took Madison Square to themselves, as if it were their own campus. There were Yale students about, too, but they were silent, except when goaded by their conquerors, and then they gave back their New England cry with fervor.

The orange and the black were above the blue, but all the same the New Haven boys did not hide their colors. It flattered from many a breast in the Hoffman House and the Fifth Avenue. But the wearers of the orange and black predominated.

When this first side of exultation had ebbed there was general inquiry about the teams. It was reported that both sievens were all right. George, the Princeton man who was injured, had not been sent to a hospital. He had sprained a ligament in his right ankle, but the doctor said he would be around before long. Meanwhile he was kept in his room at the Murray Hill Hotel. The other men of his team had a big dinner in a private room there, the best they had eaten in many days.

THE YALE ELEVEN

dined at the Fifth Avenue, and it seemed as if most of the other Yale fellows ate there too.

Princeton fed from the tables of the Hoffman and had heaps of New Haven money to pay their bills. A crowd of Jersey boys had a horn taller than Detective Jacobs of the Hoffman House, and bearing it aloft they marched through the art gallery. Jacobs suggested that there were ladies in the house and the youths laughed and said: "All right, we won't blow it here, then, but can we too it outside?" They did. It was a fog horn blast.

Down in the Fifth Avenue Hotel a tall fellow in a striped suit that came within two inches of touching the floor, stalked along tugging at a blue scarf hanging from his pocket. Another son of Yale stalked across the corridor toward him. They halted and looked at each other in dead silence and with glum faces. Then they stuck out their hands and shook mournfully, and this dialogue ensued:

"What luck?"

And the other said: "Bad luck. Say, got any money to lend?"

"No, I've lost it, and if I had not greased my pants I'd have a return ticket and leaving enough with the hotel clerk to pay my bill here. I'd have to borrow, too."

And all the other said was "d—d."

At one of the tables in the Hoffman House restaurant a man was eating.

SAT EATING A GREAT DINNER

and giving thanks hilariously. Jacobs, the hotel watch dog, heard the racket and went over to see what sort of a speech he made. "Gentlemen, I see by your colors that you are from Princeton."

Then he sat down, and the twelve others replied:

"Yes, you're right, old man; we are from Princeton and we are the people. Hurrah for the orange and black."

Then Jacobs continued his oratory, saying:

"Yes, gentlemen, hurrah for the orange and the black. It's all right, and I know that the Yale eleven are the best, and that Princeton has won a glorious victory, but I have a duty to perform, and—"

"Perform it, old boy," interrupted one of the others.

"And I must ask you, gentlemen," went on another, "to be just a trifle quieter for the sake of other people."

Then the others waited on singing "Annie, Laddie," they sang it.

A TRIPLE QUIETER.

Hundreds of college boys went to the theater after dinner. But they was jammed with other people and the students, walking arm in arm, made the crush all the more.

There were partisans of the blue and the orange, and the Standard, the Bijou and the Fifth Avenue had the largest number. The greatest crowd was at the Bijou, where the students sat in a block in the body of the house and had two of the boxes. Twelve hundred admission tickets were sold. Princeton had most of them. Some of the Yale men, however, had an audience evidently did not know there had been a foot ball game, and one man who asked a Yale man why so many college men were in the Bijou said: "I don't know, but I got to his answer a shrug, and the reply, "Oh, a college team from over in Jersey."

Between the first and second acts the boys sang in their boxes, searched, had the curtains gone down when the curtain rose:

"Hurrab, hurrab, hurrab, tiger, siss, boom, boom."

At once the 200 yards of Yale men, massed together rang their rattle: "Rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah." Yale. That read twenty lines of Demosthenes' "Decorum," if you happened to be familiar with Greek, and then a lusty voice yelled: "Yale."

The chorus rang out "Oh she's an orange and black, and she's a Yale."

The yell of "We're the best, we're the best!"

There was a laugh from all over, and his comrades of the orange shouted, "Oh she's in the top!"

"Who put her there?" yelled the orange color bearer.

"I heard the Jersey boys shout back."

"I heard the Jersey boys shout back."

In the Standard Princeton men stood five rows deep back of the orchestra circle and filled up the balcony. They showed their hats to the opposite stand until seven times, but the girls came when Dixey climbed on a horse and impersonated George Washington. The whole thing was a grand success, and the audience was won up to date by the yell of "We're the best, we're the best!"

The score was 10 to 0 in favor of Princeton and they had won the college foot-ball championship of the year.

A GOAL WAS KICKED

by Ames, gave them two more points and made the score 6 to 0 in their favor.

Both teams had now come out and played with new life. McBride tried for a goal from the field, but failed. Yale was desperate. The ball was won down the field and out onto the road. The ball was rushed up into Princeton's territory. Ames sent it back to the Yale end and it was sent back again. The ball again went out onto the road and Yale got it. Princeton fought fiercely. The ball was dropped by Cowan later ran across the field with the ball, the Yale men pursuing. He got it and ran across the field with the ball within twenty-five yards of the goal when a foul by Yale gave them twenty-five yards to play. He came near making a sensible run, gained fifteen yards more, and the first half closed without either side scoring.

SECOND HALF.

Yale began strong in the second half. Gilson gained five yards in a running side dash. A kick put the ball into Ames' arms near his goal. There was a tussle back and forth and Yale got it. Ames gained ten yards and then made a kick which sent it too close to the goal. After three downs had been made, the ball was kicked out by Ames. Cowan advanced the half five yards in the best run made up to that point. Ames took the ball and, seeing who had the ball, sent it to Princeton and Gill of Yale raced for it and the latter reached it. The ball was given to Princeton in a fumble. Cowan ran a few yards and on a pass McBride kicked the ball far up into Princeton's territory. Cowan ran a few yards and then made a sensible run, gained fifteen yards more, and the first half closed without either side scoring.

A NOTABLE EVENT.

Anniversary of the Founding of the First Catholic Church at Monroe, Mich.

MONROE, Mich., Nov. 29.—A notable event in the history of the founding of the Catholic Church in the West was the anniversary yesterday of the dedication of the first Catholic Church in Monroe, which was the second erected in the Northwest. The principal feature of the occasion was the unveiling of a statue of the Recording Angel. Monroe is a stronghold of the church and the headquarters of the Diocese of Fall River. The first church built on the River Raisin at Frenchtown as the settlement was called, was a wooden building which survived until a dozen years ago, when it was burned. At its dedication, October 18, 1788, the present Bishop was located at Monroe, and in order to prevent at his service was obliged to make his long journey in a large canoe paddled by two Indian guides. For the year 1810 the Indians were occasionally visited by Father Frisch, a honest and devout missionary, who labored among the whites and Indians, very often at great personal peril. The last time he was there was for the dedication of a very elegant church which was erected, and is still occupied by St. Mary's congregation.

Fatal Result of a Museum Trick.

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 29.—Wm. F. Sartelle of Worcester, Mass., a performer in a dime museum here, was shot dead last night. He was performing a trick, when he was hit in the head with a leaden bullet, and then appeared to load with ten leaden bullets, and then appeared to shoot at him, appearing to catch the bullets in his mouth. This time he failed to substitute a paste-board bullet, and Wm. Flannigan, who fired the gun, shot Sartelle dead.

SUCCESS NOW ASSURED.

HOW SENTIMENT HAS CHANGED CONCERNING THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The Wonderful Two Months' Campaign Made by the St. Louis Committee—The Position of Affairs on October 1 Very Discouraging—A Revolution of Sentiment—How This Was Done.

All sides the enthusiasm for the World's Fair is growing with remarkable rapidity, and the interest in the success of St. Louis is increasing daily, not only in this city but throughout the West and South. The change that has taken place within the last month is very remarkable. On the 1st of October St. Louis could not certainly count on the vote of its own State. Chicago emissaries were busy in Kansas City, and in one or two other Western Missouri districts, with good chance of success.

FORMER UNFAVORABLE POSITION.—But two votes in Kansas were certain, and only one in Illinois. Jefferson County, Tex., had pronounced in favor of Chicago, and four or five Congressmen were in doubt as to what course they should pursue. Two of the largest mercantile associations in New Orleans were on the same side, Kentucky was believed to be favorable to the claims of the city by the sewer, the entire delegations of Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Minnesota were assured, and at least two-thirds of the Congressmen from Tennessee. In short, Chicago appeared to have a commanding lead in the country west of the Alleghany and north of the Ohio, and the chances of St. Louis appeared very dim indeed.

At the present time the positions are reversed. Shortly before Fair week a quiet but important meeting of members of the Executive Committee was held, and the plan of campaign outlined. It was determined to refrain from all unfavorable criticisms of the St. Louis Fair, and to insist that it can only rest on its own natural advantages. There was some opposition to this course, as lacking aggressiveness, but pursuant to the advice of Frank Galenore and R. C. Kernes it was determined to pursue it.

IT IS ENOUGH TO SAY—that to-day every member of the Executive Committee admits that the present commanding position of this city is due to the plan pursued. Invitations were sent to every prominent man in the country, and an invitation to attend the Exposition and Fair as the guests of the St. Louis World's Fair Committee, and about a dozen accepted. One of the most prominent men who came to the city as warm advocates of St. Louis, and Mr. Springer said that this city was his second choice. The Louisiana and Mississippi Congressmen were particularly anxious, and the good work done was apparent in the number of letters from those States received shortly afterwards endorsing this city. The Texans and New Orleanians soon committed themselves to St. Louis. The Texas counties that had agreed to support Chicago recanted their resolution, and the Western delegation became the warmest advocates of St. Louis.

WONDERFUL CHANGE.

The Committee of Fair, whose correspondence and the Committee on State Action have been very hard at work and if their correspondence had not been public the election of the world's fair would have been easily decided in favor of St. Louis.

The gentlemen in charge are not yet ready to announce the results of their investigation, but it is generally predicted that from five to eight votes will be gained in Illinois, that nearly half the Indiana vote and nearly all of the Kentucky vote will go to St. Louis, and that the result will be stronger than Chicago. Even in Wisconsin, Iowa, and Nebraska this city has a strong support, and the demand from those states for maps and circulars proves that there is a good chance of having taken place. From Washington the best accounts are received. Mr. Kline, who came up a member of the most industrial politicians in the national capital and had a long conversation with the President on the subject of the World's Fair, Mr. Kline is now sure of success. In the meantime the aggressive campaign of Chicago has faded away, and the public opinion is entirely for St. Louis, and neither can expect any aid from the other. St. Louis has aroused no enmity, and besides having excellent prospects of obtaining a plurality of the first flat, will be the second choice of three-fourths of the members of the House of Representatives. Under these circumstances it is difficult to imagine how its candidacy can fail of success.
